

Since CLECs have proven unwilling and incapable of providing quality services to their customers, it is essential that other ISPs have the capability to provide such services.

Citizens don't need competing local offices, but we do need alternatives to Verizon and other CLECs for broadband services.